WALL STREET, SUNDAY, Feb. 9, 1873. The operators of the Syndicate have again entered largely, if not almost wholly, into the influences which have affected the course of speculation during the past week. The opening flourish with entered upon the negotiation of the new loan, and the general belief that they were certain to sucfor disposal, imparted great buoyancy to the specu-lation at the Stock Exchange early in the week, price of the latter down to 112%, but with the actual opening of the books on Tuesday arose a doubt of the complete success of the undertaking and the scepticism of the clique in the Gold Room, them a reputation for 'hudgment" which their

PREVIOUS MOVEMENTS ad gone far to withhold from them. As the evental four days to which the reception of subscripenthusiasm on the part of the Syndicate began to excite further distrust of the success of the loan. By Saturday the fact became evident that the Syndicate had not accomplished all they under-took. Figures and details are still wanting, and bly will not be forthcoming until the Syndicate feel less mortified and are in a more communicable mood. But from the issue of one call for

of five-twenties and the promise of another in bscriptions to the new loan have been about two hundred millions of dollars-and such wih to reveal the facts. The effects upon speculative movements at the Stock Exchange were exactly in inverse ratio with the chances of entire success, the bearish element—and to a great extent the isa element, too-being induenced apparently by no regard for any partial success, however large, in the operation of floating the of five per cents, but demanding a sort of aut Casar, aut nullus result from the Syndicate. At ward turn, with an advance to 114%-a figure so llogical as to require a belief in the paradox that, two-thirds of it, the price of gold would have risen to about 115%. Meantime the "bull" movement at the Stock Exchange weakened under the same induence, but without as marked results as in the

at this season of the year. But, as heretofore exmonth to two months late this year, and our money market in its return to ease is retarded by this lateness. The West is still in want of funds, and greenbacks are going to Chicago and Cincin-nati to supply the needs of those centres. The reflux may be expected at any moment, it is true; but meantime the advance in prices at the Stock Exchange and the wider speculation in Wall street generally, not to speak of the absence of the capital which previously was so readily furnished for the "carrying" of stocks by foreign bankers, cause a hide-bound condition of THE MONEY MARKET.

The chief feature in the active transactions at the Stock Exchange was Western Union Telegraph, which advanced to 34% on purchases to "corner" parties who were supposed to have gone short of the stock in the vicinity of 88, but who, as subsequently developed, had sold the shares, about 15,000 in number, from the company's supply, for the purpose of buying the Cuba telegraph cable, the sale being formally ratified by the Executive Committee of the company at a meeting on Saturday, whereupon the price fell back to 90%. Eric, which advanced to 69% on Tuesday, fell off to 65%, but by the close of the week had railled to 67, on ru-mors that the 3% per cent dividend would be paid on the preferred stock and 1% per cent on the common, which latter would be raised to 3 or 3% per cent in July next. A fresh speculation in Pacific Mail took it to 76%, and the completion of the Chesapeake and Ohio Raliroad advanced C., C. and

THE DANK STATEMENT.
The weekly statement of the associated banks is snfaverable, and shows not only a loss in net and surplus reserve, but an outward movement of money as between the city and the interior, Despite an enlargement of credits to the remarkable extent of over seven millions of dollars, the increase in deposits is only a little over three millions. An increase of less than half a million in specie-the consequence of the lighter customs payments of the week—is more than offset by a loss in legal tenders, so that the surplus reserve is impaired about a million of dollars. The statement compares with its predecessor as fol-

under date of February 8:—

The directors of the Memphis and Charleston Rallroad, which has been operated since July 1 by the Southern Security Company, have agreed to issue $600,000 of income bouds, bearing ten per cent interest, as a means of absorbing the floating indebtedness of the road, which now stands in the way of the realization of the rental by individual stockholders. President Rother is to leave for Nashville on Monday for the purpose of getting the necessary authority from the Legislature, which, if obtained, will leave the proposed bonds free of the five per cent tax imposed by law. Should he fail in securing the special enactment, of which there seems to be no apprehension, the bonds will be issued subject to the tax, the tranchises and the rental of the road being security. The bonds are to mature $300,000 in one, two and three years, and $300,000 in ten years from date of issue, those maturing the first three years to be sold at not less than par and the others not under ninety. The rental of the road the first five years to the content of the road the years to be sold at not less than par and the others not under ninety. The rental of the road the first five years is $160,000 per annum, or three per cent on the capital stock, and after that date $320,000, or six per cent per annum for the remainder of the term of lease. It is proposed out of this rental to pay interest on the income bonds and create a sinking fund for their retirement, besides earning an average divided of three per careful sinking fund for their retirement, besides earning an average dividend of three per cent for the ten years, after which the prospect is that stockholders will realize six per cent regularly. Meanwhile it is believed that certain branch roads of the corporation will be leased or sold, and that the corporation will realize in parts, if not in whole, their claim against the United States for setzure and use of the road during the rebellion, in which event the bonds will be sooner laquidated, or stockholders will realize larger dividends. The business of the road has largely increased since its operation by the Security Company and the statement of the Auditor, just published, shows a net income of $217,000 for the first six months, which ended on the 1st of December. In view of this position of things, shares of the road, which had declined to 19 a 20, have advanced to 25 a 28.

The interest on Memphis city sixes, and which has not been paid since July, 1811, is now being paid from collections on account of the interest, tax beginning with coupons of January, 1872, of which the amount outstanding January 1 was $68,000. It is believed the redemption of coupons of July of 1872 will be begun as early as April.

SATURDAY, Feb. 8-6 P. M. Business marts have been very quiet during the past week, and though there have been few important changes in prices, yet there has been a general tendency in buyers' favor, so that at the end of the week we find that prices in numerous instances have settled to a lower basis. The gold premium has fluctuated considerably, but merchandise has been but little affected thereby. The export movement in breadstuffs has been very slow, the difficulty in negotiating freight engagements being one of the chief causes of the existing duiness. Wheat has declined here considerably during the week, while on the other side there has been no appreciable change, yet there was but little more apparent disposition to buy than when prices were 3c. a 5c. higher. There are but few orders for wheat at any price. The trade movement was very slow to-day (Saturday), the dulness in com-mercial circles being intensified by the fact that this was the closing day of the week. Cotton was still dull and nearly neminal. At the Produce Ex-change there was but little done and but little manifest inclination to do anything. Floor was dull, but unchanged. Wheat was dull and almost nominal, closing a little steadier with a little more demand for export. Corn was quiet but no lower, and for export. Corn was quiet but no lower, and closed steadier. Oats were quiet. Whiskey was firm. In provisions there was almost nething doing, but the market was steady. Pork was firm but quiet, while lard was steady under a moderate inquiry. Petrolemn ruled quiet but without appreciable change in value. Naval stores were also quiet but remained firm, especially for spirits. In the grocery market business was quiet, excepting for coffee, which attracted considerable attention, and the market was firmer.

THEER GREAT BATTLES. An article in the last number of the Militair

Wochenblatt on the three great battles-Königgratz, Gravelotte and Sedan-contains some intergratz, Gravelotte and Sedan—contains some interesting details regarding the relative positions and tactics of the armies engaged. Gravelotte was purely an infantry and artillery fight. At Königgratz, on the contrary, the cavairy of both armies engaged in frequent smaller or larger condicts, especially towards the end of the battle. At Sedan, again, the French cavairy attacked en masse, and were invariably driven back by the German infantry. The handling of the artillery showed a great advance at Gravelotte and Sedan compared with Königgratz. While in the artillery combats of the centre on the 5d of July, 1866, there is no trace of uniform plan on the part of the general in command, at Gravelotte and Sedan the artillery was splendidly handled. After none of the three battles was there any protracted pursuit. The numbers engaged at Koniggratz were much larger than at either of the other two battles. The Prussians mustered 215,600 men, as against 220,000 Austrians and Saxons, whereas at Gravelote there were only 120,000 French against 200,000 Germans also. Koniggratz was in point of numbers the greatest battle of the century, as there were 30,000 more men present than at Leipzig. The losses in killed and wounded at Königgratz were 30,000 more men present than at Leipzig. The losses in killed and wounded at Königgratz were 30,000 more men present than at Leipzig.
